

UCT offers new coaching course

The internationally-accredited Centre for Coaching at the UCT Graduate School of Business is to offer a new coaching course in Cape Town, Durban and Johannesburg.

Craig O'Flaherty, founder and director of the Centre for Coaching, said the national drive was geared towards addressing the rapidly rising demand in South Africa for coaching expertise and bolstering organisations in their skills development and growth efforts.

There are a variety of coaching options from a two-day Coaching to Excellence (CTE) workshop to a year-long Professional Coaching Course.

The two-day CTE course is designed to introduce participants to the principals and methods of coaching.

There is also a six-month course. Both of these courses are prerequisites for the Professional Coaching Course.
